AppleTV X goes big

Feb 23 2023.

DeJitter it LLC, manufacturer of the Apple TV X, has relocated to a new production facility quadrupling production capacity to meet growing demand and is shipping from stock through its distribution partner. The new facility doubles lab space and is furthering research into new products.

Apple TV X continues to be recognized as the finest video source. Both picture and sound are unequaled in the industry owing to its unique engineering modifications, enhancements and noise canceling linear power supply. The AppleTV X brings a jump in performance that stands out clearly in picture and sound redefining both the home and professional standards for a defining unforgettable cinema experience. Now available for immediate shipment.

DeJitter it will continue using the vastly superior A2169 Apple TV platform as its base hardware as opposed to the new lower performance 3rd gen Apple TV 4k. DeJitter it's Principle and Chief Engineer Chris Stephens published a YouTube video discussing the performance degrading changes Apple made to the 3rd gen AppleTV A2843 and why the 2nd gen A2169 is the best streaming hardware made. .
